

Pinot Noir Rosé 2008

Domain Road Vineyard is a small, specialist producer of outstanding cool climate wines situated in Bannockburn, Central Otago. Established in the heart of a historic gold mining area, the vineyard covers most of a sheltered north-facing valley on the upper terraces above the Kawarau River.

The pinot noir fruit for this Rosé comes from an area know as Charcoal Gully. Sheltered from prevailing winds by the surrounding hills, this fruit has been carefully tended to produce a complex mix of flavours and create a superbly flavoursome wine.

The Wine

This saignée rosé is made entirely from Pinot Noir fruit which was de-stemmed and the juice held on the skins overnight to pick up the fresh vibrant pink colour.

On the nose, there are attractive vibrant and fresh aromas of summer fruits (strawberries, raspberries, peaches and stone fruits).

The palate is soft and rounded, exhibiting the same fresh summer fruits. The ferment was stopped to retain a hint of residual sugar, but this wine is dry in style.

The perfect wine to serve chilled with summer platters.
